Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 21 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Dry and settled today, but increasingly unsettled later this week.

Today:
After a cold start, Tuesday will be another dry albeit mostly cloudy day. There is however a better prospect of sunny intervals at times, these most likely during the afternoon. Feeling pretty chilly despite light winds. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Tonight:
Increasingly lengthy clear periods developing this evening and overnight. Temperatures widely falling to freezing or just below with a frost for most and a few isolated fog patches. Minimum temperature -4 deg C (25 deg F).

Wednesday:
Any mist and fog soon clearing, leaving a largely bright morning. Becoming cloudy during the afternoon with rain edging eastwards. Feeling cold but turning milder and breezy in west later. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Milder with rain at times and rather murky on Thursday and Christmas Eve. Turning colder on Christmas Day with a chance of snow over the hills later. Breezy at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.